ENTHUSIASM FOR FARM BUREAU.

Eastern Connecticut Development Committee Meeting with Local Business Men's Association, Appoints Committee to Push Plan.

The plan of organizing a farm league or farm bureau, the title has not been decided upon, was given a big forward push here Friday afternoon at the regular meeting of the Eastern Connecticut Development committee, with the Putnam Business Men's association, in the hall of Putnam Nest of Owls. At the time of the largest attendance there were present a number of Windham county towns and of the surrounding towns in the state.

The meeting was also attended by five farmers who have made successful records in various lines of agricultural endeavor and by representatives of manufacturing concerns in the city.

Farm Bureau Favored.

The farm bureau idea was explained at length and the applause accorded the various speakers as well as statements made indicated that there is certain to be strong support of such an organization as it now seems likely to be established.

Committee of Nine.

The committee taken toward forming the farm bureau consisted of a vote of the meeting appointing the presidents of the business men's associations of Danielson and Putnam, and William Smith, each to name three men, making a committee of nine, to spread the gospel of the farm bureau idea in the county.

A meeting to be held in Putnam on Feb. 1. The intention is to have this take steps for the forming of a permanent organization.

New London county men present in the meeting were given the most interesting talk on farm bureaus and their work. This intention is to have this week taken up in the county in Connecticut. New London county already organized and in Fairfield, Litchfield, Hartford and New Haven large lists of names have been taken or plans made for organizing.

The farm bureau work started in the south. Professor Baker explained, what an effort was being made to stamp out the boll weevil.

Much Unimproved Land. Only 45 per cent of the farm land of Connecticut is improved, was stated, this being a shrinkage of about 30 per cent from the high development figures of years long since. Only 32 per cent of the farm land of the state, which had 29,000 acres in production. The crops are decreasing, the population increasing, this being one of the things that accounts for the increased cost of living. Of the $9,000 acres of farm land in Connecticut only about 4,000 acres are producing.

Professor Baker explained the financial aid the government and state is providing and how it is being made to stamp out the boll weevil.
